

Are you looking for a career as a Change and Transformation Project Manager?

What you will do?

Since 1996 Managementors have worked with some of the UK's biggest companies, as well as organisations across the world, delivering change and transformation projects. We are small enough for you to make a difference but with a reputation that enables us to work with some big names. As a Project Manager you will be working across all levels from the CEO to Front Line Supervisor taking them on the change journey as well as ensuring that your team deliver results giving you great exposure to a range of environments.

We work collaboratively with clients and internally to develop solutions that address real world problems and our Project Managers are key to supporting teams in achieving success.

This isn't strategy or data analysis, you will be working daily with client staff to make visible, sustainable change with measurable benefits to both the client and their end customers.

Whilst Project Managers can expect to work with a wide range of clients our practice structure allows specialisation and development allowing you to gain real sector expertise which you will transfer to your projects. You will be supported by a Practice Director who will ensure that you have the skills and tools required to succeed in the job.

We work with people so you will need to have empathy and an ability to work with people from different environments. Your passion in making positive change will be key in engaging client teams.

What do we look for?

You will have experience in managing teams to deliver tangible results. Our projects are focused on results rather than reports and this will be where you spend your time.

We will provide training, coaching and support throughout your career with Managementors but ideally you will bring experience of managing change projects with multiple work-streams. Demonstrable benefits are key to developing long lasting relationships with clients so we will be looking at what you have achieved in the past.

We collaborate and persuade so you will need good communication skills with the ability to work with people at all levels and adapt your style accordingly.

As Project Manager you will be responsible for delivering projects to address real world issues. You will therefore need to be analytical and creative to tailor these projects to different environments. In addition, you will need to be a self-starter who can identify activities, prioritise these and ensure that they are delivered.

We work with people, processes and systems in a hands on manner. As a consequence, you will be spending significant amounts of time on site. As a Project Manager you will typically be on site Monday to Thursday so a willingness to travel will be required along with a full valid UK driving licence and access to a car.

What can we give you?

In addition to the satisfaction of making real change and seeing transformation on site we also offer:

- A competitive salary with an OTE of up to £75,000 comprising basic pay, performance bonus, car allowance, BUPA, Pension Contribution and Life Assurance.
- We offer 25 days annual leave increasing by 1 day a year after 3 years up to a maximum of 30 days.

We provide an attractive range of benefits through Perkbox.

You will be provided with opportunities to develop your skills through a combination of project experience and training with a clear pathway towards Chartered Management Consultant status and further opportunities within Managementors.
